CHECKED OFF

The Senate at Washington threw out the St. Lawrence Waterway scheme. That stalls the project for the present year.

The St. Lawrence scheme was one of three major projects through which the Government of Canada might put the needed money supply in circulation, by making use of the surplus labor for which there is no market demand in private industry.

The Trans-Canada highway and the Peace River outport are the other two.

The Trans-Canada, if in progress at all, is being carried on in a way to minimize the minimum results over a maximum length of time.

The Peace River railway outlet is to be built "as far as possible according to a resolution passed by the House of Commons on motion of Hon. Dr. Manion."

The settling of the Waterway project checks off the last of the three items which offered a basis for a large scale monetary inflation policy, and the creation of the active building power of which business all over Canada is dormant. On that account westerners, whatever they may think of the scheme itself, must regret the pigeon-holing of the plan.

CARDIFF VERSUS EDMONTON

Cardiff, Wales, "despises the fact that it is the centre of the most industrially depressed area in Britain," has only 209 houses, out of a total of 44,000, which are considered unfit for human habitation.

Last year the medical officer of health and the chief engineer "combed the city for slum dwellings." Such as were found are now being dealt with, "and it is safe to predict that in the near future Cardiff will be able to boast that it is a city fit to live in."

There is a mark for Edmonton's council, building and investment interests, to shoot at.

Sir Thomas Lipton has asked if the New York Yacht Club will accept his challenge.

St. Peterburgh: The Japanese have occupied Ping Yang, the port of Chin Chin, near Port Arthur, was attacked by 500 Chinese and 30 Russian troops killed. General Kurokoshi, on the way to Canton, was also killed.

It is known as second world war as there were now 200,000 Russian troops concentrated between Harbin and Port Arthur.

Cheap money made Cardiff's re-housing program a success, and it will make it possible to carry through a re-housing scheme in Edmonton, whether by the city or by private interests.

The city council should keep Ottawa reminded that as long ago as September, 1932, it had a copy of cheap money to be made available for construction in this city. The money, and the employment it would make possible, are needed now more than ever.

HOLY ROSELESS GOVERNMENT

Premier Beaton's decision to re-adopt the doctrine of "can't" has been his actioning response to every suggestion of action on the part of his Government to assist in the process of national economic restoration.

Opposition members, Liberal, Labor and Farmer, have called measures taken to bring about a sensible debt reduction interest on debts national, provincial, municipal and private, into harmony with the reduced incomes out of which these charges have to be paid, if they are to be paid. The reply of the Premier plus the rest of the cabinet is "can't."

The Dominion, he said, could undertake no large scale conversion of bonds until 1937, when the tax free war bond will mature and by which time the Canadian economy may have recovered. In the Dominion could do nothing to ease our own debt burdens. It could do nothing for the provinces, the municipalities and private debtors.

Just what this means may as well be tabulated and get clearly in mind by all parties concerned.

It means the $600,000,000 refunding loan projected by the Dominion for the present summer is "off." The work being done it will be by way of buying money to pay off existing bonds. The conversion of unmatured and callable bonds is not contemplated. Ottawa is to go on paying the present rate of interest—and getting up what cannot be paid.

It means the interest on provincial, federal and municipal bonds with federal assistance. The legislature of Alberta please note.

It means there will be no cheap money for city or town, or provincial, or city council will understand what that implies.

It means there can be no national construction program on any plan broad enough to absorb a substantial proportion of labor at fair wages.

It means the only way out of the depression is apparently the best that can be looked for.

It means that the interest on federal, provincial and private debts must continue to fall in arrears and be charged up as deficits which has been the regular procedure during the last three years. Nationally, provincially, municipally and privately, the people of Canada are compelled to pay their debts in installments. This is what it amounts to. The debt load is growing at accelerating speed. And Mr. Bennett says he can see no way to stop the process of quickening submergence.

But at the same breath he warns the members of parliament that they must not think of requesting or default. We are to save ourselves, or our credit, by continuing to sink. He knows no other way.

This is undoubtedly the most hopeless pronouncement ever made by a Canadian premier or minister of finance. It is a statement of the situation and outlook of the country. With debts unpaid, and not being paid, to say nothing can be done to make them payable is the counsel of despair. We are to keep on steering into bankruptcy.

This is only a way of admitting that after four years of "sound" money deflation and debt-prevention the finances of the country are out of hand and Mr. Bennett does not know how to regain control. The only way out of which the municipalities and private citizens are being sucked into the morass, and the Premier who was going to bend fortune to his will knows of no way to extricate them.

What the government comes to the place where it has come to, we do not know how to deal effectively with a situation which threatens the insolvency alike of the state and its taxpayers. There are just two proper courses for it to take: to re-adopt the "can't" or call a general election. The tragedy of the present is which we can have. Canada has decided that Mr. Bennett will do neither the one nor the other. Like a King of France whose fate he might profitably recall, our Premier says he will hold power until time forces him to relinquish it—and, "After me the deluge."

Mass was celebrated in St. Joachim's church on St. Patrick's Day.

In a town where the class of buildings being erected is considerably below the standard of those of good building stone structures of great importance. The only stone to be found in the immediate vicinity of Edmonton is the boulders found on the river bars, which answer for foundation stones better than wood.

The Trans-Canada highway and the Peace River outport are the other two.

Last week an organization was formed in connection with the Methodist church called the "Children's Fund."

J. R. McPhaden recently received word of his brother Dan McPhaden, who left Edmonton for South Africa a year and a half ago.

He is serving with the Transvaal company in the war in Mashonaland last fall. The letter was written from Bulawayo, the war having ended and the forces been disbanded.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

J. Hill reported that the railway between the British and British Columbia Railways.

The C.N.R. has opened traffic operation as far west as Kamloops on the Grand View section.

Sir Thomas Lipton has asked if the New York Yacht Club will accept his challenge.

Lord Beaverbrook's current warrant has been issued for the arrest of Sir Edward Carson, Ulster leader.

J. D. McArthur has contributed $5,000 to the funds of the Edmonton Association.

Bronfman: Hon. William Paterson, minister of the Interior in the Laurier government, is dead.

The last spike in the G.T.P. line from Edmonton to the coast will probably be driven by April 1st.

GOLDEN SLUMBERS KISS YOUR EYES*

(From "Patient Griselle")

Golden slumbers kiss your eyes,

Smile, my love, as you retire,

Sleep, pretty wanton, do not cry,

And I will sing a lullaby.

Rock them, rock them, lullaby.

Care is heavy, therefore sleep you,

You are care, and care must keep you,

Sleep, pretty wanton, do not cry,

And I will sing a lullaby.

Rock them, rock them, lullaby.

—Thomas Dekker.

The readjustment of the exchange value of the Canadian dollar was duly affected in the Canadian currency, and the reduction of one cent in the gold content of the crown was passed by both Chambers and Parliament and signed by the President. The effect of the measure as exemplified in the new exchange rates and the new sterling pound is approximately of 12 crowns instead of 106 and the dollar an equivalent of 24 crowns instead of 20 crowns.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COPPER

The 23-year-old wife mentioned in this column a couple of weeks as suing for divorce from her husband—a murderer serving a life sentence—has succeeded in getting relief.

At the hearing at Vancouver, evidence was given that the husband did not want to be executed, and before news of the commutation of his sentence arrived, made a confession of his sins. His wife then goes to the "fair" with a younger girl.

J. S. Copper How very fortunate is this woman! Her husband didn't arrive before the time the confession came! If she hadn't got the confession she'd have been tied up for life to her murderer. She is the lucky one of us all, which our Canadian ladies are not.

One of the most pathetic figures I know of is once been a successful woman with a lengthy record as a professional forger. He's never been out of the pen for long and is virtually a "lifer." But she can't get a divorce for that. She works now as a school teacher, so she can't get a divorce for that. But she can't get a divorce for that. In one of his periodic beatings he broke both her arms. So she became totally deaf and was obliged to give up her career as a concert pianist. She works now as a school teacher, so she can't get a divorce for that. In one of his periodic beatings he broke both her arms. So she became totally deaf and was obliged to give up her career as a concert pianist. She works now as a school teacher, so she can't get a divorce for that.

She is the enlightened country of Norway, they have a divorce law which states: "Divorce is a release from misfortune and not a crime."

Some of the Doukhobor women have started on the rampage, the boulders have started on the women to go on the rampage, but the Doukhobor women have the embarrassing habit of peeling off their clothes. Five of them were sighted in the ranks from a C.P.R. train near Revelstoke. They were seen to be wearing the clothes of men. They were told to leave and were told to leave again. The 600 members of the sect were then given three years terms on an island penitentiary of the B.C. coast, and were released after about half the sentence had been served.

When the time comes when the government in power in B.C. now, and if it has any sense it will surely profit by the experience of its predecessor in dealing with these curious religious.

It would be a good idea to let the women go to a general hospital for a short time, so that allows fan dancers to cavort on the stage, should sentence these five Doukhobor women to a general hospital for a short time. The police showed me a photograph of a number of Doukhobor women. The spectacle is most a chastening effect upon one's ardor. The Anti-Vice Society ought to hire a squad of the police to go to the cities in the interests of morality by de-bunking the allurements of the female form.

Planting a few nests of hornets or mosquitoes near the colony will accomplish more than a squad of police if the authorities want these women to keep their clothes on.

The recent report of the Dominion government on its penal institutions has mention of the various forms of punishment used there. It is not clear what will do more to reform the inmates. On numerous occasions they have refused to work, and numbers of them have attempted to escape.

The usual tact has been required, on the part of the prison warden and staff. Those convicts to be pacified, will crowd around him, pressing so closely that he cannot move. They do not consider it an act of aggression to hold him, or to poke him with their elbows when they are crowded about him. They are all vegetarians.

These convicts have been extremely difficult to manage. They will not acknowledge any other authority than God, and will not do what we tell them to do.

ANSWER: A disagreeable taste in the mouth such as you mention might be due to several things: such as, stomach trouble, badly fitting dental plates, and is sometimes due to disease of tonsils or glands. You should consult a physician for a diagnosis and if you will write to me in care of this newspaper, I will be pleased to send you some instructions which I believe will help you. I also advise that you ask for the article on neuritis since you state that this disorder is troubling you in the shoulder.

Dr. Frank McCoy's great book, "The Fast Way to Health," contains an excellent chapter on neuritis under the heading "Nerve Diseases." The author suggests a simple diet and exercise, and a quiet life.

ANSWER: I would like to add: Warden McArthur's suggestion paper, if he can give us more evidence to why a man was released from the "black hole" of prison, I would like to add that he was released to the "black hole" of prison because he had been sentenced to the "black hole" of prison for a short time.

Warden Blake deserves credit for trying to make Lethbridge jail a place fit for prisoners to live in, but a good deal more needs to be done to better conditions at Fort Saskatchewan.

With the harsh treatment which has been proven to be allowed to go on, it would be better time for a "house cleaning."

Married Flirts

By MABEL MCLELLIOTT

CHAPTER XVIII

The big car slid up to the sun block from head to foot, with accents of white, lace gloves, white flowers on her little hat, and a box of perfume, frill after frill. "My dearest! You'll permit. You'll come down to us for a week or two." Lila was right, but she had long been so patronizing. Aloud she said, "Even in that well dressed train of butterflies, Lila, you stood out. Heads were turned through, consciously unconscious."

Gyp thought humorously, "Surely the only woman in the restaurant was Lila. All the men lunched so sleek and assured, these made her feel shabby and small."

Lila was gracious indeed. After a brief and sumptuous breakfast, she turned the conversation to the Weavers, after which she had plans for the summer? She and Gyp had found a quiet place at Southampton, just a cottage—only seven rooms—but it was right on the shore. They'd go down the first of June.
